Preface

The purpose of this research report is to provide some historical and genealogical information about some of the Descendants of Sir James Tyrrell of co. Essex, England who lived during the 13th and 14th centuries of the Common Era. Several of the descendants of Sir James are of both genealogical and historical interest. For instance, Tyrrell County, North Carolina was named for Sir John Tyrrell (No. 47, p. 32); John Throckmorton of Providence, Rhode Island, USA (No. 53i., p. 36), ancestor of the family of that name in Rhode Island; the descendants of Major Richard Saltonstall, son of Sir Richard Saltonstall, and Muriel or Meriell Gurdon (No. 62, p. 43), are members of the prominent Saltonstall family of New England; Anne Lovelace (No. 63, p. 44), who married Rev. John Gorsuch, was an early settler of Virginia and ancestor of the Gorsuch family there; Sir James Wright (No. 97i, p. 67), was the last Colonial Governor of the Colony of Georgia; Earl Charles Cornwallis (No. 102, p. 70), was defeated by General George Washington at Yorktown, Virginia in the decisive battle of the American Revolution.

I need to emphasize that I am not an expert in English and/or European genealogy. The data presented herein is as accurate as I could make it, and I have tried to cite my sources as completely as possible; but I realize that there are errors and omissions. Therefore, I urge extreme caution when using and citing this report.

This report is constructed as a research tool, and a beginning point for others conducting genealogical research. Particular emphasis is placed on the following paragraph.

It has been said by authorities in the field that genealogical compilations such as this one should never be cited without verifying that original sources are correct. I agree completely with this philosophy. Whenever possible, primary documents rather than secondary sources should be consulted.

The format for citations is roughly that described by Elizabeth Shawn Mills in Evidence!: Citation & Analysis for the Family Historian, Genealogical Publishing Company, Inc., 1997 and based on templates provided in The Gold Edition of The Master Genealogist for Windows by Wholly Genes, Inc., Columbia, Maryland. .

The reader should be aware that this report is not a book in the classical sense. The information in this report started out as bits of data in a fairly large electronic genealogical database that I maintain using The Gold Edition of The Master Genealogist for Windows, a Genealogy Program for Windows written and published by Wholly Genes, Inc., copyright 1999. The data relating to the Descendants of Sir James Tyrrell was exported from The Master Genealogist directly to Microsoft Word for Windows, a word-processing program. The final version of this report, complete with formatting and footnotes, was generated by the Microsoft Word program.

Descendants of Sir James Tyrrell

Generation One

1. SIR JAMES¹ TYRRELL;¹ b. between 1265 and 1270;² d. between 1343 and 1345;³ m. Margaret Heron;⁴ This report begins with Sir James Tyrrell, whose marriage with Margaret, heiress of Heron, in the reign of either Edward II or III, probably introduced the family into co. Essex. (See Moriarty, pp. 204-219, in English Origins of New England Families, First Series, Vol. III.) The Visitations of Essex for 1558 and 1612 (also Burke's Baronetcies of England, Ireland, and Scotland, p. 530.) contain long pedigrees of the family that indicates their descent from Walter Tyrrel, the Lord of Poix, who supposedly slew William Rufus and who held the Essex Manor of Langham of the De Clares at Domesday. The Tyrrels were a great French house and their history is considered in two French works: 'Histoire Genealogique et Heraldrique de la Maison de Tyrel, Sires puis Princes de Poix,' by M. Curvillier-Morel-Acy (1869) and by the Abbe Delgove in 'Memoires de la Societe d'Antiquaires de Picardies (vol. xxv, p. 287, sq., 1876). Their pedigree also appears in the Visitations of Bucks, 1566, 1634. However, these Visitation pedigrees are not documented and were compiled in an uncritical period of genealogical research. Therefore, they should be viewed with some caution.

This report covers three Baronetcies, all now extinct, as follows:

TYRRELL, of Springfield. Created 22 Oct 1666. Extinct 5 Jan 1766.

ARMS: Argent, two cheveronels, azure, within a bordure, engrailed, gules.

TYRRELL, of Thornton. Created [1st Patent, 31 Oct 1627: 2nd Patent, 19 Feb 1638.] Extinct 20 Jan 1749.

ARMS: Same as Springfield.

TYRRELL, of Hanslape. Created 20 July 1665. Extinct May 1714.

ARMS: Same as Springfield.^{5,6}

²⁵The Early Tyrrels of Heron in East Herndon, English Origins of New England Families Series 1 Vol 3 The Early Tyrrels of Heron in East Herndon by G. Andrews Moriarty, p. 217.

Moriarty notes the following: Sir John, the eldest son and heir, held Heron, the Buttsbury manors in Essex, and the Hampshire Manors of North Avon, Ripley, and Milton. Sir John was knight of the shire for Essex in 1411, 1413, 1417, 1419, 1421, 1422, 1425, 1429, 1430/1, 1433, and 1436/7. He was Speaker and died in 1437, leaving by his wife Alice, daughter and co-heiress of Sir William de Coggeshall, a son and heir, Sir Thomas Tyrrel of Heron, born in 1411, died in 1476, the ancestor of the later Tyrrels of Heron (cf. Wedgwood's "History of the Parliament, Biographies, 1439-509", p. 891, for his life).

Burke and other pedigrees state that Sir Thomas was the father of this Sir John Tyrrel who died in 1437, but the evidence of the will of his brother Edward of Downham, and of the Fine Roll of 1422 (op. cit.) show conclusively that they were the sons of Walter Tyrrell and the latter was evidently the son of Sir Thomas. Walter's descendants held the Essex and Hampshire lands of Sir Thomas. In 1370 Sir Thomas gave the manor of North Avon, Hants., to Walter Tyrrell and Eleanor, his wife (Cal. Inq., vol. II, 302; Woodward & Lockhart's Hants., op. cit). Accordingly, as Moriarty states: "It is not unreasonable to assume that Walter was the son of Sir Thomas."²⁶

- iii. WILLIAM TYRRELL JUN.; Of Beeches, in Essex.²⁹

There were no children of Sir John⁵ Tyrrell of Heron Manor and Catherine (--?--).

6. EDWARD⁵ TYRRELL (Walter⁴, Thomas³, Thomas², James¹),³⁰ m. Anne Pashley, daughter of Sir Robert Pashley and Philippa Sergeaux; d. after 10 Oct 1442, date of his will.³¹

Sir Edward Tyrrell attempted to remove his eldest son from succession to the baronetcy, by surrendering the patent to the crown, in 1638, and obtaining a new one dated 19 February, in that year, with precedency of the former, altering the succession to his second and third sons, passing over the eldest; but in the Viscount Perbeck's case, it was laid down, that a dignity cannot be surrendered to the crown, to the prejudice of the next heir, for it is annexed to the blood, and nothing but a deficiency or corruption of the blood can hinder the descent. And the House of Lords in that case resolved and adjudged, "That no fine now levied, nor at anytime hereafter to be levied to the king, can bar such title of honour, or the right of any person claiming such title under him that levied, or shall levy such fine."

On the death of Sir Edward Tyrrell in June 1656, there were actually two baronetcies of the same precedency, the first patent inherited by the eldest son, the last by the second. This matter was resolved when the eldest son, Sir Robert Tyrrell, d. unmarried, and both titles were merged in his brother, Sir Toby Tyrrell, the second eldest.²³⁹

102. CHARLES¹⁶ CORNWALLIS 2ND EARL CORNWALLIS (Charles¹⁵, Charles¹⁴, Charles¹³, Charles¹², Frederick¹¹, William¹⁰, Thomas⁹, John⁸, William⁷, Philippa⁶Tyrrell, Edward⁵, Walter⁴, Thomas³, Thomas², James¹); b. 31 Dec 1738;⁴⁵⁶ d. in India 5 Oct 1805 at age 66; m. Jul 1768 Jemima Jones. Charles, having distinguished himself as a great military commander in America and India, was created 1st Marquess Cornwallis, 15 Aug 1792. In 1799, his lordship was appointed lord-lieutenant of Ireland and commander of the forces there, in which situation he acquired the reputation of having restored public tranquility at that unhappy period by the firmness, moderation, and humanity which governed his councils. In 1801, he signed the peace of Amiens; in 1804 had the honor of being placed a second time at the head of the government of India, as governor-general, and died there on 5 October, in the following year. Knight of the Garter.

The following is excerpted from Encarta Encyclopedia:

Cornwallis, Charles, 1st Marquis Cornwallis (1738-1805), British general and statesman, whose defeat at Yorktown, Virginia, in 1781, was decisive in ending the American Revolution.

Cornwallis was born in London on December 31, 1738, and educated at Eton College and the University of Cambridge. He received his first military commission in 1756 and later studied at the military academy in Turin, Italy. During the early part of the Seven Years' War he served with the British army in Germany. In 1760 he was elected to the House of Commons, and two years later, having inherited the title Earl Cornwallis, he entered the House of Lords.

Cornwallis generally opposed the policies that led to the American Revolution, but in 1775 he accepted a military command as a major general. He took part in the Battle of Long Island, New York, and later in the campaigns in New Jersey. On December 26, 1776, at Trenton and on January 3, 1777, at Princeton, his forces were defeated by General George Washington. Cornwallis was responsible for the British victory at Brandywine Creek, Pennsylvania, in September 1777, and later in the same month he occupied Philadelphia. Displeased at the failure of the two successive British commanders in chief, Sir William Howe and Sir Henry Clinton, to be more aggressive in the war, Cornwallis tried to resign. The resignation was not accepted, but Cornwallis's plan to blockade the South was approved. Clinton conquered Charleston, South Carolina, on May 12, 1780, and Cornwallis, in command of British forces in the South, achieved a great victory over General Horatio Gates at Camden, South Carolina, on August 16, 1780. After a bloody battle against Major General Nathanael Greene at Guilford Courthouse, North Carolina, in March 1781, Cornwallis was forced to retreat to the coast. Washington decided to move against Cornwallis at Yorktown, Virginia. Clinton failed to send help, and the Americans were aided by a French fleet under Admiral François Joseph Paul, comte de Grasse. Cornwallis surrendered on October 19, 1781. With his surrender the American victory was assured.

After the war Cornwallis returned to Britain, and in 1786 he was appointed governor-general and commander in chief in India. He instituted land reforms and reorganized the British army and administration. In 1792 he defeated Tipu Sahib, the powerful sultan of Mysore. Cornwallis was given the title marquis in 1792 and returned to England the following year. As viceroy of Ireland (1798-1801), he quelled a rebellion in 1798. He established order in a manner that gained him the goodwill of the Irish people. As plenipotentiary to France in 1802, he negotiated the Treaty of Amiens, ending one phase of the Napoleonic Wars. He was reappointed governor-general of India in 1805, but died on October 5 of that year, soon after arriving in India.
