NOTE: This volume has been retyped by Member # 521 Mrs. Johnnie Roden Gambel from the original 1940 version. We sincerely appreciate the donation of her time to this project. Font sizes, spacing, and (when necessary) layout have been adjusted to fit the original page numbering system. Some illustrations in our "original" which is a Xerox copy are too poor to be worth including, but we have included what we could at the end of the document. The INDEX by #142 Mrs. Suzanne Johnston of Danville CA who was active in the Society between 1987 and 1989 has also been retyped and reformatted to conserve paper. We hope you enjoy this historic TERRELL publication. Dan Brinson, Corp. Secretary.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

From early childhood no subject has interested me more than family history. I used to listen with unabated delight to the stories of Colonial and Revolutionary ancestors and ancestresses. And, since checking the traditions of my family by the various records I have consulted, I find that the stories related to me by a great aunt and my mother are very accurate. The family history told me by my great aunt was told her by her maternal grandfather, Henry Burnley, whom she visited very frequently in her girlhood and after she married. The family records of the Terrells were given to him by his mother, Hannah, a daughter of Joel Terrell of Hanover County, Virginia. The data given me by my mother was detailed to her with care and accuracy by her maternal grandmother, a daughter of Henry Burnley and Lucy Barksdale, his wife. My mother lived in the same home with this grandmother until she was twenty years old.

In corresponding with other members of the Terrell family in recent years I have been much impressed with the similarity of the traditions (although some of them are highly ornate) as compared with my own traditions. Many of these various Terrells are not acquainted with one another, but their family history certainly indicates a common heritage in Virginia.

Edwin Holland Terrell's traditions, back to his Virginia forebear, Henry Terrell, are all right but he is vague beyond that, and I find that condition prevails in the records of other branches of the Terrells. Most of them claim, or try to claim, descent from Sir Timothy and are confused as to the connection.

With this before me, I determined to go back to the dim, mossy past, carrying my own traditions and weigh all possible evidence of the origin of the Terrell family in Virginia and the link in England.

During odd moments for the past fifteen years I have searched for information of the first three generations of Terrells in Virginia. I have gone over the archives in Richmond, all volumes of the William and Mary Quarterly, Tyler's Magazine of Virginia History, and all available literature of that period – 1647 to 1700. Swem gives the names of over two hundred Terrells of Colonial times and I am reasonably sure I have looked up the references to all of them. Also, I have searched the county records of Louisa, Hanover, Albemarle, Bedford and Campbell. This search has been thorough and painstaking and I was assisted by my brother, Mr. R. D. Wharton, and my husband, Mr. William Harrison Lamb, who checked the search with me most carefully. To these collected data I have added all available family traditions and records. Authentic and valuable

Papers have been furnished by my cousin, Miss Emma Dicken, of Meridian, Mississippi.

Mr. Joseph Henry Terrell of Castleknock, Twickenham, England, searched the records of the various churches and courts in England for the ancestry of Richmond Terrell and I regard his work as reliable.

Many references are made to Terrells in London, Reading and nearby places, and we find the names of Robert, William and Timothy mentioned frequently. These names are borne by different members of the family in different localities and at various times before members of the family came to Virginia. But the first Richmond Terrell is the one baptized in Reading in 1624.

Various branches of the Terrell family in the United States, separated by a century or more, widely dispersed geographically, and who have lost trace of relationship, carry the tradition of the three brothers, Robert, Richmond, and William. Some claim that they were King's surveyors; that they were pioneer settlers from England in the colonial days; that they held commissions from the King; and various other assumptions that the meager facts recorded, and conditions of the times do not sustain.

One of the genealogical snarls that seem to have tangled up so many efforts of the Terrells in tracing the early Virginia Terrells and their link to England was the attempt to trace descent from Sir Timothy Terrell of Oakley who was Master of the Horse for Charles I. And for the sake of clarity I shall take those interested back to George Terrell of Thornton, South Ockenden and Bruyn, Lord of the Manor of Bruyn and Fobbing, Essex, England, who died May 16, 1571 and was married to Eleanor (or Elizabeth) Montagu, a daughter of Sir Edward Montague. I am going back this far from the American ancestry to show the causes of changes in residence and the evident division of certain properties.

In fact, a generation further in England will show how Thornton Hall came into the family. George Terrell of Thornton, who married a Montagu, was a son of Humphrey Terrell of Thornton Hall, who married Jane, daughter and heiress of Sir John Ingleton of Thornton Hall in 1519. In his own right he held the Manor of Bruyn and 500 acres. He died January 15, 1648. So it will be seen that Thornton Hall was the property of his wife and came into the Terrell family from the Ingletons.

The eldest son of this family, Edward, evidently inherited the estate and title of his maternal grandfather for he was Sir Edward of Thornton Hall and the father of Sir Timothy Terrell of Oakley, who was Master of the Horse for Charles I.

William, a younger son of George Terrell, was, as above stated, brother of Sir Edward and uncle of Sir Timothy.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

And here we strike the radical difficulties of the American Terrells who have persistently fought to trace their descent from Sir Timothy Terrell, Master of the Horse.

William Terrell inherited from his father, George Terrell, the Manor of Bruyn in Essex. Possibly there were other children who jointly inherited or held dower rights in the 500 acres, for later we find that he alienated (or sold) the estate and moved to Reading. The estate of Bruyn seems to date back to Sir Humphrey le Bruyn whose daughter Elizabeth married Sir Thomas Terrell who died in 1490.

William married a Miss Richmond of Stewly in Bucks. He had sons; David d. 1632; Francis, d. 1638; Robert d. 1643, all of Reading. Robert resided in Reading where he was a councilor and Borough Guardian in St. Giles Ward. He married Jane, daughter of Robert Baldwin and Joane Pigeone. Robert Baldwin and Joane were married in St. Mary's, Reading, October 5, 1590 and Robert Baldwin died in 1660.

Robert Terrell and Jane Baldwin married June 29, 1617 in St. Giles Church, Reading. Robert died 1643. His widow died in 1660 or 1661. Their children were as follows: John, b. June 25, 1618, his will is dated 1661, died unmarried 1661 or 62; Robert, b. Nov. 14, 1619, will dated 1677, died unmarried 1677; Richmond born 1624, alive after 1677, m. Elizabeth Waters, died in Virginia; Charles, died in 1629, evidently a child; William born 1629, was alive in 1677 (in England), married Martha _____, had a son, William, alive in 1677, and a daughter, Mary, who is mentioned in his brother, Robert's will; Timothy, born 1631 or 32, alive in 1643, but probably dead by 1661 or 62; Mary born 1621, m. _____ Mew, lived and died in England; Margaret born 1623, m. Thos. Warner of Sulhausted Abbots, Berks, a clothing merchant. Lived and died in England.

We see that in 1643 Robert Terrell of Reading left a widow and a family of young children all residing in St. Giles Ward. Financially, he probably had just enough from the proceeds of a business that he owned to keep them in comfort. Evidently, they all lived at their mother's home, for neither of the daughters was married in 1643. Their home was no doubt one of many of the same type at that time, comfortable but modest, as evidently the larger part of the estate had gone to Edward and what was left had been divided or suffered deflation until, as before stated, Robert's father had sold his manor home.

Here was his son, Robert Terrell, second son in a widowed mother's home, with four brothers and two sisters. According to caste in England he was a member of a prominent family, a cousin to a courtier of Charles' Court. Evidently John took over his mother's business. Robert went to London to join the ranks of young gentlemen of fortune who were heading toward the new world. Richmond was but nineteen years old, William fifteen, and Timothy ten or eleven at furthest. Mary was 22 and Margaret was 20, both grown, unmarried.

In 1647, four years later, Virginia had a population of 15,000 and a large trade with England, Holland and New England. December 25, 1647, a noted historian states "the harbors of Virginia were white with sails."

This was during the political disturbances in England. Young aristocrats were out for adventure and money.

We note from the York records of 1647 that Robert Terrell was in York County, Virginia, and an official in the Fishmongers' Company of London. Tyler lists him as one of the London merchant princes doing business in Virginia. He was at that time twenty-eight years old. Frequent mention is made of him and he describes his business "in a way of merchandizing to and from Virginia."

Tradition has it that Richmond fell in love about this time with a Miss Waters. A Waters family resided in London, some of them being communicants of St. Sepulchres, others were Catholic. It is safe to assume that Richmond, as soon as he was old enough, followed Robert to London and here, no doubt, met the lady of his choice who reciprocated his love. It seems that the Waters family strenuously objected to Richmond on religious grounds. The rejected Richmond seems to have sought solace in the Bahamas. Miss Waters came to Virginia seeking him and not finding him, returned to England to die of a broken heart. It then seems that Richmond heard of her in Virginia and hastened thither only to find her gone back to England. It seems that he then remained in Virginia where she joined him. One legend has it that she came to Virginia the first time with several ladies and Richmond's brother.

In 1647 the Virginia records show that Elizabeth Waters came to Virginia with Mrs. Elizabeth Barcroft and several other ladies. The York records show that Robert Terrell was in Virginia that year. We next note that Elizabeth Waters was transported to Virginia by Anthony Fuljam in 1650. These two sparks of light flash across our tradition like verification. It was within this period that Miss Waters made her two trips to Virginia.

It is generally accepted that Richmond married Elizabeth Waters. I have an affidavit made by an elderly member of the family in Louisa County, Virginia, that his aunt said that Richmond's wife was named Elizabeth. There were many Elizabeths in the first three Terrell generations in Virginia. In 1683 Mrs. Elizabeth Terrell is recorded as attending to some legal business in which she is interested. Richmond the first died about this time.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

Mrs. Terrell was obviously a widow as married women had no business status and all of Richmond's sons were alive at this time and young men.

Virginia records show Richmond Terrell to have been affiliated with the Diggs, Chandler, Foster (or Forster), Waters, Waring and other early colonial families in New Kent where he and his bride settled after 1650, and probably neither saw England again.

A deed dated April 29, 1670 bearing the only quotation on earth from this emigrant ancestor of the Terrells, carries a note, to me, of terse sadness. He conveys 600 acres to Robert Wyatt reserving "100 acres formerly given unto my brother, William Terrell, and since by him sold to Frances Waring."

From 1656 to 1670 there are references made to Richmond Terrell all evidencing that he was a planter and had he held any commission there would have been some note of it somewhere during this period.

"On March 7, 1656," we quote, "Robert Terrell of London, Merchant, landed at Dover on the 6th present out of the 'Honor of London' (vessel) from Virginia and came to London last night and lodgeth at ye house of William Terrell in Thames St. in the parish of Little Alhollowes and saith that his business is in a way of merchandizing to and from Virginia."

"On a July 19, Robert Terrell of London landed at P. _____ in Sussex on the 6th of June last, out of 'Charles of London' Samuel Cooper, Master, from Virginia came to London on the 7th and lodgeth at ye house of William Terrell in Chandos St, Little Alhollowes and saith his business in a way merchandizing to and from Virginia."

We see from these references that Robert described himself "of London," and that William lived in London and was in the mercantile business there.

In other records, both Virginia and English, Robert is given power of attorney to collect bills in Virginia for English merchants and on occasions, left others with powers of attorney for himself and certain other gentlemen in England.

This is the first mention made of William in connection with his brothers. His grocery business was probably a large one and he probably merchandized with Robert. This year (1656) the first mention of Richmond on the Virginia records is made. This year, 1656, definitely marks the occupations of these three sons of Robert Terrell and his wife, Jane Baldwin. Robert, thirty-five years of age, was a merchant "of London." Richmond, thirty-two years, was definitely a planter in New Kent, VA. William, twenty-seven years old, was in businessman in London, shown by the records to be a grocer. He married a lady named Martha and had two children, William and Mary. From 1647 to 1660, the Commonwealth controlled England and there were no King's commissions given. Later, three of Richmond's sons could have been surveyors. But there appears to be no record

No other reference is made to William, born in 1629, son of Robert and Jane Terrell of Reading, until he is mentioned as being transported to Virginia by his brother, Richmond, in the latter part of 1669 or early part of 1670, for on Feb. 8, 1670, Richmond is given head land for transporting him and eleven others. By April 29, 1670, he had sold the 100 acres given him by Richmond and we hear of him no more in Virginia. The next we hear of him he administered Robert's will in England in 1677.

Timothy, a son of Richmond, is genealogically confused with an English uncle. The English Timothy was obviously named for his father's cousin, Sir Timothy of Heron Hall, who no doubt was on affectionate terms with Robert and helped the latter's son, Robert, to effect his quick and permanent rise in the Fishmonger's Company of London.

Some of the descendants of the Virginia Timothy claim that he was a son of the Timothy b. in 1631 or 1632 and that he ran away to his uncles in Virginia when his mother married again. The objection to this is that the Timothy born in Reading in 1631 or 1632 could hardly have been the father of Avery Terrell b. in 1647. The Timothy alleged to have run away from England is supposed to have been born in 1656 and a brother Avery in 1647.

A Timothy Terrell m. Dorothy Collard (in England) and has three sons: Avery, b. 1647; William, b. 1650; Timothy, b. 1656.

The Virginia Timothy's birth is given by certain of his descendants as 1668. He was, therefore, twelve years younger than his English cousin who, doubtless, never saw Virginia. The Virginia Timothy married Elizabeth Foster or Forster. The Fosters (or Forsters) lived adjoining the first Richmond Terrell for years. Timothy had two sons baptized in St. Peters, New Kent, Va., Robert, Dec. 25, 1697, and Joseph, Dec. 31, 1699.

A careful study of the foregoing dates and incidents will clearly indicate that Robert, Richmond, William and Timothy Terrell in the records of Virginia are the sons of Richmond Terrell and his wife, Elizabeth Waters. Mentions are made of them showing them to be in active business long after the English brothers had passed on.

When I began this study of the early Terrells in Virginia my only idea was to establish my own line back to England. I was told that Hannah Terrell was a descendent of Richmond Terrell, and, according to her statement to her son, Henry Burnley, when her great grandfather first came to this country he was a "kingsman and wore the doublet and the hose." The Virginia records show beyond question that Hannah was a daughter of Joel, Sr., and the records of the Terrell and allied families in Virginia show that Joel was a son of William Terrell and Susannah Waters. It is equally evident by deduction and tradition that William was a son of Richmond Terrell, the Emigrant. Joel, Sr., married, in 1720, Sarah Oxford. The year of his sister Anne's marriage to David Lewis is given as 1717. This would evidence that William and Susannah Waters, who is said to have been his cousin, were married around 1690. This would meet my conjecture that William was one of the younger children of Richmond and Elizabeth. He was probably around twenty-five years of age at the time of his marriage. At his death, said to have been in 1729, he was supposedly in his seventies. His brother, Robert, we note was past twenty-one in 1682. His brother, Richmond, was past twenty-one in 1689. His brother, Timothy, was married before 1696.

It is perfectly evident that the William of New Kent, VA., who married Susannah Waters, could not have been the William who was born in Reading, England, in 1629. The latter as stated, was a grocer in London and married to a lady named Martha. We hear of him no more after he administered his brother Robert's will in London in 1677. Richmond is mentioned in this will. In 1683 we find, as stated, Mrs. Elizabeth Terrell adjusting certain business of her own. This indicates that the first Richmond was then deceased. By reason of age it is almost certain that the Richmond referred to thereafter was a younger and an active man Edwin Holland Terrell gives his ancestor, Henry the First, son of William and Susannah, as having been born in 1705 or 10. At this period the William born in 1629 would have been between 76 and 81 years of age. Not likely that he and his wife were raising a young family at this time of life. Henry was the son of William and Susannah Terrell. He was born about the time Mr. E. H. Terrell states, but William the father of Henry was a son of Richmond the Emigrant and the nephew of William, born 1629 in Reading, England.

Records of descendants of both Henry and David may be found in many Quaker publications of that period and locality. Both of these seem to have become Quakers, which was the religious persuasion of the Chiles family into which family both of them married. An account of Anne may be found in the history of the Lewis family in Virginia and other records.

William and Susannah had other children. As before stated, I am actively tracing no line except my own but I am printing family records of other branches of the family that have been handed me and lists of the children of some of the earlier Terrells where I have found reliable records of them. I wish I had more of such records and hope that this book will assist other Terrells.

Conditions in England and Virginia in the 17th Century

Before leaving the Seventeenth century, a few remarks about the conditions prevailing at that period may help us to a clearer conception of that formative and most crucial development of Virginia.

It has been said that the history of a nation is a history of its wars. To me, the real history of a nation is its religious and domestic intent.

No one can study the early history of the families of Virginia without becoming familiar with the basic ideals of our queenly Commonwealth. During the first thirty years of colonization unspeakable hardships were endured especially by the few intrepid women who braved the living conditions of that time. Many of them died and so did the children.

But by 1640 home were far more comfortable, neighbors more reachable, food more plentiful, and water sources better understood. As before stated, by 1647 there were fifteen thousand inhabitants in Virginia. There were churches, local officials, teachers, medical men, prosperous plantations and other business. Crude mansions arose in the forest primeval. Parks and gardens were developed, patterned after English homes. And these Virginians began to establish an aristocracy of their own.

By the fireside, on winter evenings, stories were told the children of the courage and valor of their grandsires – and the beauty and dignity of their grandmothers. Cromwell's administration had just about impoverished the British aristocracy. And Virginia offered the fulfillment of many a dream. Virginia was founded on the bed rock of aristocratic English tradition.

Many families in the latter 18th Century in transcribing their family traditions, drew fanciful pictures of their early Virginia traditions lest the wealthier aristocratic element of English then pouring into their territory might scorn them as descendants of servant girls. A disinterested review of conditions in the early and middle 17th Century shows clearly that many maidens of excellent families came to Virginia with friends to visit friends already here with the same spirit of adventure in their bosoms as that which animated the young men. And of course, romance stalked abroad.

We might here, with broadening effect on the minds of those who have elaborate ideas of the lords and ladies of this period, insert an excerpt from McCauley's History on the landed knights and squires of the 17th Century in England.

"He troubled himself little about decorating his abode, and if he attempted decoration, seldom produced anything but de-formity. The litter of a farmyard gathered under the windows of his bedchamber, and the cabbages and gooseberry bushes grew close to his hall door. His table was loaded with coarse plenty; and guests were cordially welcomed to it. But, as the habit of drinking to excess was general in the class to which he belonged, and as his fortune did not enable him to intoxicate large assemblies daily with claret or canary, strong beer was the ordinary beverage. The quantity of beer consumed in those days was indeed enormous. For beer then was to the middle and lower classes, not only all that beer is, but all that wine, tea, and ardent spirits now are. It was only at the great houses, or on great occasions, that foreign drink was placed on the board. The ladies of the house, whose business it had commonly been to cook the repast, retired as soon as the dishes had been devoured, and left the gentlemen to their ale and tobacco. The course jollity of the afternoon was often prolonged till the revelers were laid under the table.

“It was very seldom that the country gentleman caught glimpses of the great world; and what he saw of it tended rather to confuse than to enlighten his understanding. His opinions respecting religion, government, foreign countries and former times having been derived, not from study, from observation, or from conversation with enlightened companions, but from such traditions as were current in his own small circle, were the opinions of a child. He adhered to them, however, with the obstinacy which is generally found in ignorant men accustomed to being fed with flattery. His animosities were numerous and bitter. He hated Frenchmen and Italians, Scotsmen and Irishmen, Papists and Presbyterians, Independents and Baptists, Quakers and Jews. Towards London and Londoners he felt an aversion which more than once produced important political effects. His wife and daughters were in tastes and acquirements below a housekeeper or a still room maid of the present day. They stitched and spun, brewed gooseberry wine, cured marigolds, and made the crust for the venison pasty.

“There are, however, some important parts of his character still to be noted, which will greatly modify this estimate. Unlettered as he was and unpolished, he was still in some most important points a gentleman. He was a member of a proud and powerful aristocracy, and was distinguished by many, both of the good and of the bad qualities which belonged to aristocrats. His family pride was beyond that of a Talbot or a Howard. He knew the genealogies and coats of arms of all his neighbors and could tell which of them had assumed supporters without any right, and which of them were so unfortunate as to be great-grandsons of aldermen. He was a magistrate and, as such, administered to those who dwelt around him a rude patriarchal justice, which, in spite of innumerable blunders and of occasional acts of tyranny, was yet better than no justice at all. He was an officer of the train-bands; and his military dignity, though it might move the mirth of gallants who had served a campaign in Flanders, raised his character in his own eyes and in the eyes of his neighbors. Nor indeed was his soldiership justly a subject of derision. In every county there were elderly gentlemen who had seen service which was no child's play. One had been knighted by Charles the First, after the battle of Edgehill. Another still wore a patch over the scar which he had received at Naseby. A third had defended his old house till Fairfax had blown in the door with a petard. The presence of these old Cavaliers, with their old swords and holsters, and with their old stories about Goring and Lunsford, gave to the musters of militia an earnest and warlike aspect which would otherwise have been wanting."

"Even those country gentlemen who were too young to have themselves exchanged blows with the cuirassiers of the Parliament had, from childhood, been surrounded by the traces of recent war, and fed with stories of the martial exploits of their fathers and uncles. Thus the character of the English esquire of the seventeenth century was compounded of two elements which we seldom or never find united. His ignorance and uncouthness, his low tastes and gross phrases would, in our time, be considered as indicating a nature and a breeding thoroughly plebeian. Yet he was essentially a patrician, and had, in large measure, both the virtues and the vices which flourish among men set from their birth in high place, and used to respect themselves and to be respected by others. It is not easy for a generation accustomed to find chivalrous sentiments only in company with liberal studies and polished manners to image to itself a man with the deportment, the vocabulary, and the accent of a carter, yet punctilious on matters of genealogy and precedence, and ready to risk his life rather than see a stain cast on the honour of his house. It is however only by thus joining together things seldom or never found together in our own experience, that we can form a just idea of that rustic aristocracy which constituted the main strength of the armies of Charles the First, and which long supported, with strange fidelity, the interest of his descendants."

In the general review of history that is now progressing in Virginia, a very beautiful and classical revival is the pilgrimage of colonial gardens in connection with garden club work.

No one can visit these rare and silent tributes to the artistic ability and culture of our grandmothers without a deep conviction that this expression of floral and arboricultural loveliness places the plantation mistress of the South in the front rank of the exponents of beauty in all ages. But the history of these gardens should go back to their birth.

The first Virginia Gardens were humble little patches full of hopes and prayers and memories. The first Virginia Dames worked over them with their own hands and what rude tools they could get. But they told their daughters of the old gardens of their childhood in merry England and their daughters worked with them and caught the vision. And finally the great-granddaughters and those thereafter reaped the harvest of culture and beauty that we are today so proud to call our own.

From the middle of the seventeenth century – even earlier – exodus from England of well bred, home-making English women to Virginia began. Many of these women were the wives of younger sons of the aristocracy and gentry to which social classes they also belonged by birth. Many others were the daughters of comfortable merchants and professional men. All of them must have possessed the spirit of youth and ambition to brave the dangers of the new world.

An ocean voyage in those days was a hardship. Enough linen and bed clothing for themselves, as well as edibles, had to be provided for a period of two or three months.

One can fancy the serious faces and tear-dimmed eyes of the women packing for this journey. Through the open windows came the odor and vision of the old gardens that had been their playground as children and where they had decked their hair with garlands and gathered blossoms for the cool spacious rooms in their mothers' homes. From those English gardens came the slips and bulbs and seeds from which the Virginia gardens grew. They planted their choice slips in tubs and carefully wrapped bulbs and seeds to keep them from air and ocean dampness.

The rocking, surging voyage over, in a log cabin, often without doors or window panes, the English girl unpacked her treasures and hastily planted her garden even before her linen was washed and spread out on the grass to bleach, or her bedding was hung on bushes to sun and lose the moldy odor of her close damp quarters on the ship.

She watched over her roses, her bramble berries, her shrubs, and all the old-time flowers that gave, and still give, undying romance and sweetness and color to the gardens of Virginia.

One of the Terrell family who lived in one of the old Terrell homes in Louisa County told me that as recent as forty-five or fifty years ago in the garden of her father's home grew the "Lady Mary Rose," a small yellow rose, and a flower called the "Pride of England." She said it was legendary with them that these plants had been brought from England and she also stated that there were some apple trees carrying the same tradition.

Groups of Early Terrells by Families

(Note the similarity of names)

From 1714 to 1741 on the land records of Virginia appear William, Joseph, James, Henry, Richmond, Joel, Sr., John and Champress. From 1760 to 1765 we have on the records Joel, Jr., Henry, David, and Pleasants.

Anne Terrell, daughter of William and Susannah Terrell, married, as before stated, David Lewis. She was married about 1717 and died in 1734. Her children:

Joel, Sr. lived and raised his eight children on a plantation in Hanover Co., Virginia, described by a son of Major Henry or Harry Terrell as “on the banks of the Pamunka river” He also described his Uncle Peter as “a big fat man whose daughter was a fine woman and married Ben Branham.” This son of Harry Terrell further stated that his father moved from Hanover County to Bedford County. Later he moved south. The records of Bedford and Campbell counties show that in 1784 the Terrells and Israel and Hannah Burnley sold their holdings. Harry and his wife, Anne, were already living in South Carolina.

The children of Richmond Terrell of Louisa and Anne Overton were: Elizabeth, Anne, Mary, Barbara, Rebecca, Richmond, James, William, Richard, Samuel. This Richmond died in 1771 and his widow, I think, in 1790.

Richmond Terrell, the Emigrant, had daughters. One of them married an Andrews. Richmond the second married Martha Crump. Timothy married Elizabeth Foster or Forster. This division of land between the Terrells and the Fosters in 1689 could easily have been a property division to settle law questions between Richmond the second and his brother, Timothy. The records of Charles City County carry the name Richmond Terrell. So do the records of York and Louisa. Even a cursory glance at the descendants of Hannah Terrell in this volume will show that the name has been borne by many of the descendants of this lady who remembered that he was a "King's man." The records of New Kent were destroyed but in St. Peter's Church Yard there is a tomb marked Richmond Terrell Lacy d. 1800.

Memories

With such a vast wealth of history of homes and families in the splendid past of Virginia, it is hard to keep on one track. But time and space oblige me to keep before me the object of my work. That is the ancestry and descendants of Hannah Terrell. Speaking of her, she seems to have had a keen memory and a deep appreciation of the rank of her family in England. Born, I judge, before 1730, she was reared about five miles from St. Peter's church. Her father's plantation was on the Pamunky river in Hanover county, Virginia. There were three or four of her children older than her son, Henry, who was born in 1756. Her youngest child was Stephen Willis, born in 1770. Stephen Willis was five years old when his sister, Anne, married and his brother, Joel, was already married. Showing that Hannah Terrell's children ranged in ages from a young man to his early twenties to a son five in 1775. I judge her to have been married after 1745. She was married in St. Paul's Parish where she lived and where in 1751 her husband, Israel Burnley, was a vestryman.

In 1757 the records of Louisa County show that Israel Burnley purchased land in that county. Joel Terrell, Sr., owned considerable land in Louisa as well as in Albemarle. Later, after the death of Joel, Sr., we find Israel Burnley mentioned in the Albemarle records as "of Louisa," settling dower rights with his wife's brothers-in-law and her brother, Joel Terrell, Jr. In 1767 we find Israel and Hannah purchasing land on Falling river in Bedford and Campbell counties. In 1784 they sold out and settled in Warren County, Georgia, where they are buried in the family burial lot on the farm that is still owned by their descendants. Israel Burnley was the son of John Burnley of New Kent and his second wife, Phoebe Davies, who was the daughter of Moses Davies, gentleman. Moses Davies was a character of considerable importance in the colonies. For a generation or two in the Burnley family we see such Bible names as Zachariah, Reuben, Israel, Keziah, etc. These names came from the Davies family.

Zachariah Burnley, Israel's brother, was High Sheriff of Bedford County and later of Orange County, and he was a member of the House of Burgess from Bedford.

Israel and Hannah seem to have lived a very even and happy life with their children, all of whom went to Georgia with them except Anne who married John Brown. She remained in Bedford.

Henry Burnley, a son of Hannah, who married Lucy Barksdale (widow Davenport), was very proud of his mother and cherished the early pioneer stories of her people and their rank back in England. He was fond of stories of his own boyhood in Virginia and his army experiences. He said that back in Bedford County, Virginia, every Sunday morning the children were allowed hot biscuits and coffee. And to celebrate, he and his brothers would have pillow fights on Sunday morning. Coffee was not a plentiful drink at that time, and beaten biscuit quite a luxury.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

His romantic marriage with the young and charming widow of Major Jack Smith Davenport is told elsewhere in this book.

My great aunt, Mrs. Jane Seals Crymes, never tired of talking about him. I recall in a letter to her from Richard Malcolm Johnson, the Georgia writer, he states his recollection of the white-haired old man with knee breeches and silver buckles and the big black ribbon that kept his silvery locks in place. Richard Malcolm Johnson's mother was a step-daughter of Henry Burnley and in this letter Mr. Johnson also stated that his mother said that Henry Burnley treated his step-children as if they were his own.

Mrs. Crymes, a married woman at the time of Henry Burnley's death, said his coffin was made by his favorite slave out of new boards and covered with black broad cloth. Inside it was cased in white and she recalled his sweet old face framed in by his soft beautiful hair.

He was a brave soldier in the War of the Revolution, as was his brother, Joel, who was killed at Yorktown. Nearly all of the Burnleys were bitter Tories. My great aunt always referred to herself as an English lady, and to Queen Victoria as "our gracious queen." Henry Burnley would not allow tea in his house because he said it caused the break with the mother country. At the time of Henry Burnley's death memorial services were held for him in the various surrounding churches. He was kind, charitable and most lovable. I think this must have been a family characteristic as my great aunt was one of the most beautiful characters I have ever known. I regret that the reproduction of her picture in this book so poorly expresses her rare loveliness. It was hard to produce a cut from the old picture.

The only likeness of any one of Henry Burnley's children that reproduced well enough to print is that of my great grandmother, Anne Terrell Burnley. My cousin, Mrs. Sue Hubert Walker of Warren county, Georgia, has one of her great-grandmother, Sarah Burnley, eldest daughter of Henry Burnley, but the reproduction of the old ambrotype was too pale to print. The one of her husband, Hiram Hubert, was more successful.

My great aunt emphasized Henry Burnley's love for the "High Church" as the Episcopal Church was often called. She said he attended services in that church whenever he could. She also stated that he revered the Catholic Church because his ancestress, Richmond Terrell's wife, belonged to that church and loved it all her life.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

Henry Burnley, son of Hannah Terrell, married the young widow Davenport, who was Lucy, daughter of Collier and Sarah Barksdale. Miss Sarah Donelson Hubert, a granddaughter of Sallie Burnley and Hiram Hubert, in 1895 completed a compilation of the descendants of Collier Barksdale. This very comprehensive work carries the line of descent from Hannah Terrell to hundreds of her descendants, and I am including Miss Hubert's pamphlet in full.

The father of Collier Barksdale, or his grandfather, came to Virginia from England and settled in Halifax County near what is now known as Barksdale Depot. Collier's father was William and he married a Miss Collier, said to have been the daughter or granddaughter of the Lieut. Governor of York in 1670.

Among the records of early baptisms in the Parish records of Newbury, Berkshire, England, "In yeare of our Lord 1518 and in the 30 years of Henry VIII," appears the name of Barksdale, according to the researches of Gore.

Francis Barksdale was a distinguished citizen of Newbury. He was a fellow of Magdalene College, Oxford, and vice-president of the college in 1650. John Barksdale in 1643 was deputy steward of recorder or the town. "Clay Hill" in Virginia, the home of a branch of the Virginia family, is the name of a site in Newbury, England.

The Barksdales in Virginia descended from the Cheshire family that originally came from Berkshire. From this place they seem to have moved to London. In the Parish of St. Olave William Barksdale and his wife, Joan, lived. The Colliers also lived in this parish.

The children of William and Joan Barksdale recorded in St. Olave's, Hart Street, London were:

Elizabeth, Barksdale baptized Dec. 21, 1644

Sarah, baptized Aug. 21, 1646

William, baptized Dec. 15, 1657

Before the family moved to this parish, James and Hester were born. The children of William in Virginia and his wife, _____ Collier were:

Collier Barksdale

Nathan

John

Hickerson

Claiborne

Collier's wife, Sarah, was unquestionably a member of the Randolph family. My great-grandmother stated to my mother that she, Mrs. Seals, was a "second cousin" of John Randolph of Roanoke.

Collier Barksdale purchased from the Randolphs the plantation called "Let-a-lone" and lived there until his death in 1774.

The records and deeds of the counties in which the two families, Barksdales and Randolphs, lived shows close relationship in business and the names in the two families show marked similarity.

Collier died of a sudden illness in the fall of the year 1774 while he and his son, John, were on their way home from Petersburg where they had been to dispose of tobacco.

His will is recorded in Cumberland County, Va. It was made in July 1, 1766, and recorded October 3, 1774. The children named in the will are John, William, Lucy, Allen, Nathaniel. Seven children are named in Miss Hubert's book, John, William, Lucy, Nathan, Joseph, Ally (Allen) and Sarah.

There is also a Virginia record of the marriage of a daughter, Mary, to Thomas Lipscomb, March 20, 1773. His wife is named in his will as Sarah.

One of the stories with which Collier Barksdale is said to have entertained his children with in leisure moments ran thus:

"A tobacco planter found himself in need of cash and went to a neighbor who lent him enough money to cover his needs with the understanding that he was to turn over his next tobacco crop to his neighbor who was to repay himself and hand what was left back to the borrower. However, when the unusually good crop was harvested and packed, the dishonest man started off to sell the tobacco himself. That night he camped near a frog pond, ate his supper, fed his horses and, wrapping his blanket around him, lay down to sleep. But a big old frog came out of the water and croaked, "You owe, you owe!" The fellow jumped up and shouted "What do I owe?" Then dozens of little frogs piped up "tobacco, tobacco, tobacco!" The unworthy farmer was so frightened that by dawn he turned his horses and hogshead back, went to the neighbor, and paid his debt."

I remember my great aunt telling me this story when I was quite small and it impressed me very much.

In placing Cousin Sallie's book in my "memories" I am acting as my heart dictates. The names catalogued there are pearls to me in my memory's casket. I personally knew few of them but in my early childhood when a letter would come to us from the South, I would listen excitedly as my elders read and re-read the news of the relatives. Sometimes the news was gladsome – a wedding, a big party, a new arrival or even a new dress. Sometimes sad – telling of the passing of one beloved to a Better Land and then I would sorrowfully repair to my dolls and tell them to be quiet for someone had died. How forcefully the names in Cousin Sallie's book bring back those smiles and tears. As I look over them the words of George Eliott come to me.

"O, Memories! O, Past that is!"

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

Following is Miss Hubert's compilation. Note the Beverlys, Randolphs, Colliers and Mournings in the text; also the frequent use of the name "Richmond Terrell."

Record of Joseph Barksdale and Miss Ford

Joseph Barksdale, son of Collier Barksdale of Charlotte county, Virginia, was born in Virginia; married there a Miss Ford, and lived in Virginia a number of years before moving to Georgia in 1793. Record of William Barksdale and Bethiah Saxon William Barksdale, son of Collier Barksdale of Charlotte county, Virginia, moved to South Carolina about 1775. He settled on Bush River about fifteen miles from Laurens C.H. His first wife was Bethiah Saxon, a daughter of Colonel Benjamin Saxon and sister to the wife of General John Elmore. (General Elmore was father of Tom and Frank Elmore, two of South Carolina's most distinguished sons. Frank died while serving as United States Senator from South Carolina. William Barksdale, by his first marriage, reared two children – Samuel, and Jane Barksdale, the wife of Hamilton Lowry. Her family went West.

Samuel Barksdale was born 1777; married Nancy Griffin, daughter of Joseph Griffin; died 1830

William Barksdale had second wife, name unknown; by this marriage he left two sons – Hagerson and John. Both left families but cannot tract them.

Children of Samuel Barksdale and Nancy Griffin were seven:

First. John Franklin Barksdale, born 1809; died unmarried, 1849.

Second. Sallie C. Barksdale, born 1811; married Samuel Copeland.

of Laurens, which was organized in 1785. It is now county of Laurens.

Nathan Barksdale was married 1779 to Mary Allen, who was born 1756. She was a sister of Charles Allen, Sr., of Laurens district. They reared their families near Laurens C.H. He died September, 1812, and she 1835.

Nathan was a son of eminent piety, a strict member of the Baptist church. He was kind and benevolent, maintained a high character for honesty and integrity in all of his transactions, had the confidence of his neighbors, was the trusted adviser and friend of all who knew him.

Charles Allen, Sr., was a devoted Whig, and several of his sons were killed in the Revolutionary war; his son Charles known as "Esquire Allen", surviving the war and becoming widely known as a representative man.

Nathan Barksdale and his brother William were also staunch Whigs.

The children of Nathan Barksdale and Mary Allen were five sons and six daughters.

First. Collier Barksdale, born 1780; married Mary Franks; died 1846.

Second. Allen Barksdale, born December 25, 1783; married Nancy Downs 1809; died December 7, 1870.

Allen Barksdale, second son of Nathan, was born December 25, 1783; married Nancy Downs, daughter of Joseph Downs, in 1809; died December 7, 1870. He was sheriff of Laurens district in 1824 to 1828; afterwards elected and served several terms in the legislature; was prominent in all public affairs in his district. His wife, Nancy Downs, was daughter of Joseph Downs and Jane Alexander. Joseph was son Henry Downs of England, and Jane Douglas of Scotland. Joseph Downs was a brother of Major Jonathan Downs of Revolutionary fame, both prominent in the history of Laurens, S. C., Major Downs having named Laurens district for his friend, Henry Laurens, who was the first president of the Congress of the Confederation.

Jane Alexander, mother of Nancy Downs, was a daughter of Abram Alexander of Mecklenburg, N. C., president of the famous Mecklenburg Convention, May, 1775.

We copy from the Laurensville (S.C.) Herald of December 7, 1870, the following in reference to the death of Allen Barksdale:

“Mr. Barksdale was born in Laurens district, within a mile of where he died. He was no ordinary man. During all the active years of his long life he was identified with whatever redounded to the best interest of the people of Laurens. He was often honored with the trusts of the people – as often, perhaps, as his consent could be obtained. He was sheriff of the district, represented the people for several terms in the legislature, and was commissioner of public building for almost half a century; in all of which positions he made himself useful to the people, and always exhibited that stern integrity, uncompromising virtue, great good sense, and sterling worth so characteristic of his whole life. To be useful, upright, virtuous, charitable, kind, active, intelligent, and energetic is to be truly great, and these and their kindred virtues made up the character of this truly great man. He had been in happy union with the Baptist church for more than forty years, and his ennobling virtues had brought him in his silver hairs that which is always seemingly accompanying, and the crown of old age, honor, love, obedience, troops of friends, with a quiver full of descendants of whom any man should justly be proud. For the past few years we have only seen him in public occasionally, when no man could but admire his manly port, his finely-cut face, ruddy countenance, with his luxuriously flowing silvery hair. As often as we have seen him have we been forcibly reminded of the dignified Roman senator, as he occasionally repaired to the Senate House in the palmiest days of Rome, to see that the republic suffered no detriment. Honesty, integrity, high purpose, noble resolve sat on his brow and was written on his face, and his heart was open as day to melting charity. Laurens has, perhaps, never had a citizen more useful, a man more generally and deservedly esteemed for all that is good, true and noble. After a well-spent life – in the evening, in the autumn of his life, in the season when the leaves are falling and all nature wears a sad face, ‘he fell like autumn fruit that mellowed long.’ Such has been his life – so useful, well-spent, honorable – that when summoned to his place in the halls of death, he was sustained and soothed by these high virtues and unfaltering trust, and approached his grave:

‘Like one that draws the drapery of his couch about him,
And lies down to pleasant dreams’.”

Allen and Nancy Downs Barksdale reared five sons and four daughters.

First. Rebecca Barksdale, born 1810; married Wade H. Griffin; died near Selma, Ala., 1893; left one daughter – Mrs. E. C. Collins, of Orrville, Ala.; one daughter and two sons died – one in the army.

Captain James Peter Barksdale, son of Elisha and Judith A. Barksdale, was killed at the battle of Hatcher's Run, Va., a few days before the surrender of the Southern troops.

The information of William and Peter Barksdale's families, who were sons of Nathaniel, Sr. and Mourning Dickerson, was furnished by Mrs. Judith A. Barksdale of Rodden, Va. Miss Lizzie V. Crews furnished the record of William Peter Barksdale's family.

Nathaniel Barksdale, JR., son of Nathaniel, Sr., and Mourning Dickerson was born in Halifax county, Virginia, in 1764 or 1765; married Ann Garden; moved to Rutherford county, Tennessee, in 1808; died there in 1830. They reared four sons; first, William; second, Randolph; third, Nathaniel; fourth, James G. Barksdale

First. William was married in 1813 to Nancy H. Lester, of Williamson county, Tennessee, formerly of Charlotte county, Virginia. She died July, 1825, and he in July, 1835. They left four sons – William, Fountain, Ethelbert, Harrison. After the death of their parents these four youths, the eldest not more than twenty-one, left their old home in Rutherford county, Tennessee, moved to Mississippi, and made that their future home. Mississippi had cause to be proud of her adopted sons; she never had four braver, nobler, or more devoted sons than the Barksdale brothers.

William Barksdale, the father of these young men, was in the famous battle of New Orleans 1815.

William Barksdale married Narcissa Smith, who died in 1875. They had two sons; one died in 1877 about twenty years of age, the other, Ethelbert E. Barksdale, died at his home in Sherman, Texas, July 18, 1892.

When John J. McRae was elected Governor of Mississippi in 1853, William Barksdale was elected to the Senate of the United States for the long term. Near the close of Governor McRae's second term he was again elected to Congress. After the States seceded and formed a Confederacy and Jefferson Davis was elected president, Major Charles Clark was appointed major-general of the Mississippi State troops, and William Barksdale brigadier-general. He immortalized himself at the famous battle of Gettysburg, PA., July 1863, and was there killed while leading his brigade of brave Mississippians. His home was in Columbus, MS.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

Fountain Barksdale, son of William and Nancy H. Lester Barksdale, is now past seventy-eight years of age; is the last of the four brothers. His home is in Yazoo City, Miss., where he has been merchandising for many years. He has one son – Fountain, Jr., married, but has no children. Two daughters; one married Thos. B. Craig of Yazoo city; the other a Mr. Craig. Both have children.

Major Ethelbert Barksdale, son of William and Nancy Lester Barksdale, married Alice J. Harris. They reared one son – Edwin, who is now living near Yazoo City; one daughter – Mrs. Ethel Harrington of Jackson, Miss. Major Barksdale's widow is also living in Jackson. Major Ethelbert Barksdale was a prominent man in Mississippi. He was a member of the Confederate Congress; was also elected in November, 1882, to the Forty-Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Forty-Ninth in 1884. He established the Yazoo Democrat, at Yazoo City, in 1845. He was once editor of the Mississippian; also, of the Clarion Ledger, both published in Jackson, Miss. Was considered an able editor.

Harrison Barksdale, son of William and Nancy Lester Barksdale, died at Tupelo, Miss., July 10, 1862, while serving the Confederate cause. Left one son – Hon. James A. Barksdale.

Hon. James A. Barksdale, son of Harrison and Laura C. Barksdale, was born December 3, 1854, on the "Oak Valley Plantation," nine miles below Yazoo City. He married Miss Henderson of Savannah, Ga., in 1890. She died in 1892. He died October 14, 1894. They left one son, James A., who is now with his grandmother Mrs. Henderson of Savannah, Ga.

Hon. James A. Barksdale has been prominent in all public affairs of Yazoo county for twenty years. He was universally esteemed. He had been deputy sheriff, chancery clerk, and a distinguished member of the legislature; was chairman of the Congressional Executive Committee of the Fifth district at the time of his death. He was faithful to every trust. He was educated at Trinity College, North Carolina. After leaving college he, for a time, edited the Banner, published in Yazoo City.

Says the Yazoo Sentinel in reference to him: "His was a fine character, lofty and noble. He was one of the most manly men we have ever known. His integrity was beyond suspicion; his honor no man questioned. His endeavor was to see the right and then the right pursue. His word was his bond; he was never known to forfeit it. He loved his friends, and cheerfully honored any draft they might make upon him. He had his enemies, as has every man of strong, positive character, but he never pursued them with spite or vindictiveness, and commanded their respect."

Some information concerning the family of Nathaniel, Jr., furnished by Fountain Barksdale, of Yazoo City, Miss.:

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

Third. Randolph Barksdale, son of Nathaniel, Jr., and Ann Garden, was married, 1815, to Mary H. Read. Issue, three sons – John Nash, Clement, Thomas; two daughters – Eliza, Ann.

Eliza Barksdale died in infancy.

John Nash Barksdale graduated from Chapel Hill, N. C. Was admitted to the bar; practiced law successfully for several years in Woodbury, Tenn. Afterwards located in Columbus, Miss.; formed a partnership with his cousin, Hon. William Barksdale (General Barksdale), which continued until his death, which occurred in 1841. He was one of the most brilliant young men of his age. Columbus (Miss.) Democrat says of him: “Mr. Barksdale came amongst us a few years since as an entire stranger, but soon the urbanity of his deportment, the unaffected goodness of his heart, and the brilliancy of his intellect doubly endeared him to all. He was a kind friend, a good citizen, and an ornament to the State.” (Unmarried.)

Clement Barksdale was drowned while returning from school, fell from a foot-log crossing a creek.

Ann Barksdale married Robert W. White, a lawyer of prominence of Woodbury, Tenn. He died young, leaving two children – Robert and Mary.

Robert White died young.

Mary White married Hon. Robert Williamson, now of Greenville, Miss.

Thomas Barksdale, the youngest of the family, died in Chulahoma, Miss., unmarried.

After the death of his first wife Randolph Barksdale married Susan Williams of Rutherford county, Tenn., November 25 1821. Issue, one son – Rev. William Henry Barksdale, now of Barfield, Arkansas.

Randolph Barksdale was again married in 1830 to Jocline Norflut. Issue, three sons – Nathaniel, James, Robert.

Nathaniel White died in Chulahoma, Miss., unmarried.

James White was a colonel in the Confederate army. Was killed while gallantly leading his men in a battle in Virginia. Unmarried.

Robert White was a young lawyer of promise, practicing in Helena, Ark., prior to the late war. He fell at the battle of Shiloh, while nobly battling for Southern rights. Unmarried.

This information of Randolph Barksdale’s family was burnished by Rev. W. H. Barksdale of Barfield, Ark.

Rev. W. H. Barksdale was married first July, 1849 to Mary F. Bookett, daughter of Dr. William T. Bookett of Murfreesboro. Issue, one son – W. R. Barksdale of the firm of Barksdale & Denton, Memphis, Tenn; one daughter – Mrs. Mary S. Barksdale Carver of Memphis.

Rev. W. H. Barksdale’s second wife was Lucy Donohoo, to whom he was married in 1867. Issue, one son – Jefferson Donohoo Barksdale.

Rev. W. H. Barksdale began to preach in his nineteenth year.

Was ordained in Rutherford county, Tennessee, by the Middleton Baptist Church.

Third. Nathaniel Barksdale, son of Nathaniel, Jr., died many years ago in Tennessee. Some twenty years ago his family was living in Gibson county, Tennessee. Two of his sons were printers.

Fourth. Dr. James G. Barksdale, son of Nathaniel, Jr., died in Shelbyville, Tenn., 1884, past eighty years of age. Left no children.

Claiborn Barksdale

Claiborn Barksdale was born in Charlotte county, Virginia. He lived and died in that county. He was twice married; first a Miss Morton. After her death he married a Miss Carter. He had three sons – Claiborn, William, and Grief; six daughters – Lucy, Susannah, Mary; names of the others not known.

Claiborn Barksdale, Jr., married Sarah Read, daughter of Rev. Clement Read of Charlotte county. To them were born seven sons and three daughters: Albert, Claiborn, Clement R., Charles H., Edward M., Isaac R., and Thomas E., Mary Jane, who married Dr. William A. Fuqua. Cora A. married Charles H. Hunt, Esq. Maria Louisa married Judge Wood Bouldin, of the Court of Appeals of Virginia.

(We cannot trace the ancestry of this family as far back as the other families of Barksdales, but believe them to be descendants of Collier Barksdale of Charlotte county, as some of his children remained in Charlotte.) This information was furnished by Colonel Thomas E. Barksdale of Whitlock, Halifax county, Virginia.

Nicholas Barksdale removed to Georgia before 1789; settled on the Savannah river near what is now known as Barksdale's Ferry. He was related to Collier and Nathaniel Barksdale; perhaps a brother, but we are not certain of that fact. Some of his descendants are living in Wilkes, Elbert, and Lincoln. Thomas and James were men of character and prominence, representing Wilkes and Lincoln in the legislature several terms.

Hannah and Daniel Barksdale

There was a family of Barksdales who moved from Virginia to Georgia and settled in Hancock county before 1800. They were related to the Collier Barksdale branch, but we do not know the name of their ancestor. Hannah Barksdale and Daniel belonged to this branch. Hannah was twice married. Her first husband was Berry Long. By this marriage she had four children; two sons – William and Alfred; two daughters – Emily and Mary.

William Long was married three times. First to Susan Ann Heeth. She left no children. He then married her sister, Jane. She left a son, Alfred Long, who married Miss Cason. William Long's third wife was Sarah Fowler, daughter of William Fowler of Warren county. Issue, one daughter, who married Prior Veasy, son of Rev. Thos. Veazy of Warren county.

Alfred Long, son of Berry and Hannah Long, married Mary Cason, daughter of Adam Cason of Warren county.

Emily Long married Manum Jones of Warren. Issue, four daughters – Josephine, Georgia, Willie, Virginia Boyd Jones.

Josephine Jones married Thomas L. Wheeler of Warren county. She left two sons and two daughters.

Georgia Jones married William Anderson of Norwood. Issue, three sons and two daughters.

Willie Jones married William Collier Barksdale of Warren county. Issue, five daughters and one son.

Virginia B. Jones married Stokes Pate of Warren. No issue.

Mary Long married Benjamin Heeth of Warren county. Issue, one son – William, and two daughters – Emily and Exie Heeth.

William Heeth has been married three times. First to Mrs. Cornelia Wheeler. Issue, two sons – Ben and Jesse Heeth, and one daughter – Emmie. His second wife was Ida Hubert. No children. Third, Mrs. Holloway. No children.

Emily Heeth married Benjamin F. Hubert. Issue, three sons and two daughters.

Exie Heeth married James Ivey of Warren county. Issue, three sons and one daughter.

Hannah Barksdale's second husband was Anthony Jones, of Warren county. Issue, two sons – Louis and Dink, and two daughters – Sarah and Mitt.

Louis Jones was twice married. First to Mary Humphrey. Issue, one daughter – Emma, who was accidentally killed when about fourteen years of age by a little boy who was playing with a loaded pistol, not knowing that it was loaded. His wife was killed in a cyclone March 20, 1875. She was in the church at Elam when the storm struck the building and blew it down. She was the only one killed out of sixty who were in the house. His second wife was Mary E. Wicker, daughter of Colonel N. A. Wicker of Warrenton, Ga. Issue – several daughters. Louis Jones died 1887.

Dink Jones married Fannie Harris. Issue, several daughters.

Sarah Jones married Thomas Hopkins. Issue, one daughter – Toodie Hopkins, who married John B. Barksdale of Warren county. Issue, six sons and three daughters.

Mitt Jones married Ezra McCrary. Issue, two daughters – Lizzie, who married Buford Thomas, and Effie, married.

Nothing is known of the family of Daniel Barksdale, who was brother to Hannah. He died in Alabama.

Green Barksdale, who for a long while was a resident of Powelton, was a nephew of Daniel and Hannah. He married Celia Connell. Left no children.

W. H. Barksdale, of Abbeville, S. C., is a grandson of Benjamin Barksdale, who emigrated to Abbeville from Rappahannock county, Virginia. We cannot trace this family, but presume they are related to the Collier and Nathaniel branches.

(This ends Miss Hubert's Compilation)

The work done by Miss Hubert is monumental so far as our family is concerned. No one could write such a record now. The older ones are gone and the younger ones have not the information at hand. The only regret is that in many instances she used "nick names" or only part of the Christian name. Miss Hubert's compilation was published in 1895.

MISCELLANEOUS

This data can be verified by the English records quoted. It has been published in historical magazines on file in the State Library in Richmond, Virginia, and, I presume, in the Library of Congress.

Much of my material I have put under miscellaneous because I have not had the time to correlate it nor place it in the book section where it should properly be. When I edit this book again, I shall try to correct all errors. In the meantime it will enable interested persons to have a better understanding of our various family connections.

“There were in Berks, two apparently distinct families called Tirrell viz:

(a) the T’s. of Drayton and Hagborne and (b) those of Reading.

The family to which Richmond T. belonged is (b) and consisted of the descendants of the three brothers Robert (died 1643), David (died 1632) and Frances (died 1638). Of these Robert was the father of the following:

(1) John died unmarried March 1661-2.

(2) Robert died unmarried 1677.

(3) Richmond born 1624 alive 1677.

(4) Charles died a child 1629.

(5) William born 1629, certainly alive 1661-2 and possibly alive 1677 (when his daur, was referred to in Robert’s will). He had also, a son William alive 1677.

(6) Timothy born 1631-2, alive 1634 but probably dead by 1661-2.

(1) Mary, born 1621 unmar. In 1643, married by 1661 - Mew who was dead by then. She was alive in 1677.

(2) Margaret born 1623, unmar. In 1643, married by 1661-2. Thomas Warner of sulhamstead Abbots, Berks, clothworker, at which date they were both alive.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

LINE OF MRS. MONTFORT JONES

Alley Burnley, daughter of Henry (called Harry) Burnleey and Lucy Barksdale, was born in Charlotte County, Va., September 18, 1787, died in Attala County, Mississippi, Sept. 14, 1849, aged 61 years, 11 months and 26 days. She married her first cousin, Henry Brown, about 1808 or 1809. He was the only child of Nancy Burnley and William Brown, and was born in Virginia, January 18, 1776, and died in Attala County, Mississippi, March 22, 1847. Nancy Burnley, Henry Brown's mother, was a sister of Harry Burnley, both being the children of Hannah Terrell and Israel Burnley, Virginians. The Brown family lived in Georgia (Warren County) until 1834, Harry Burnley, the father of Alley, having moved to Georgia in 1789 when Alley was two years of age. In 1834 the Brown family moved to Attala County, Mississippi, so were pioneers of Mississippi as well as of Georgia. The old log house built by them is still standing and not far away all of them sleep in the old family burying ground.

They had six sons and two daughters, as follows:

1. William Henry Brown died November 24, 1862.
2. Nancy Brown died in Georgia.
3. Alfred Terrell Brown born January 1, 1813, died December 25, 1876.
4. Tamberlain Jones Brown was born September 26, 1814, died May 14, 1885.
5. Richard Davenport Brown born August 17, 1816, died September 19, 1876.
6. Susan Waters Brown born April 19, 1819, died April 19, 1846.
7. Benjamin Franklin Brown died March 5, 1863.
8. Henry Burnley Brown died August 31, 1873.

1. William Henry Brown, oldest son of Henry Brown and his wife, Alley Burnley, married Mary Burnley, daughter of Henry Burnley, Jr. (who was a son of Harry Burnley by his last wife, Mary Lockey.) He was William Henry Brown's half uncle. William Brown's wife was his half first cousin. They had no children.
2. Nancy Brown married Mr. Brook and died in Georgia.
3. Alfred Terrell Brown never married.
4. Tamberlain Jones Brown married Mary Alice McGee (born 1848, died 1915), daughter of Joseph Tarpley McGee. They had six children, as follows:

1. Mary Alley Brown
2. Henry Joseph Brown
3. Edna Susan Brown
4. Arthur Jones Brown
5. Minnie G. Brown
6. William McGee Brown

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

1. Mary Alley Brown, daughter of Tamberlain J. Brown and his wife, Mary Alice McGee, married twice, the first time to Madison Lee Allen of Attala County, Mississippi. They had one son:

Rowland Lee Allen, died in youth.

She married the second time Montfort Jones of Kosciusko, Attala County Mississippi, whose ancestors were also Virginians, he being the son of Dr. Montfort Jones, the grandson of Lewelyn Jones, the great-grandson of Peter Jones III, the great-great-grandson of Peter Jones, II, and great-great-great-grandson of Sarah Montfort and David Stokes, the Elder, of Lunenburg County, Virginia.

2. Henry Joseph Brown died in young manhood.

3. Edna Susan Brown married George McMillan of Attala County, Mississippi. This couple moved to Oklahoma. Their four children are as follows:

- a) Henry Mims McMillan
- b) Jesse Evans McMillan died in infancy
- c) Edwin Caston McMillan
- d) George McMillan died in infancy

Henry Mims McMillan, oldest son of Edna Susan Brown and George McMillan, married Oma Ross. They reside in Bristow, Oklahoma, and have two children:

Betty Ross McMillan born 1926.

Nancy Brown McMillan born 1928.

Edwin Caston McMillan, third son of Edna Susan Brown and George McMillan, married Minna Karl Ekdahl, niece of Montfort Jones, who married Mary Allen Brown, aunt of Edwin McMillan. They are residents of Bristow, Oklahoma, and have one son:

Harry Mims McMillan born 1929.

4) Arthur Jones Brown, son of Tamberlain J. Brown and Mary Alice McGee, his wife, never married.

5) Minnie G. Brown, daughter of Tamberlain J. Brown and his wife, Mary Alice McGee, married John Lee Simmons. Their home is within four miles distance of the old Brown homestead in Attala County, Mississippi. They have four children:

John Tamberlain Simmons

Mary Elizabeth Simmons (called Bess)

Henry Brown Simmons

Alley Brown Simmons

6) William McGee Brown, son of Tamberlain Jones Brown and his wife, Mary Alice McGee, married Sue Beck. They reside at Muskogee, Oklahoma. Their one son is:

Patrick Henry Brown (called Pat)

ROUTE OF THE KINGS HIGHWAY

The accompanying map has been sketched to show graphically the trail followed by the pioneer settlers of tidewater Virginia in their occupation and development of lands, and the subsequent route of the "King's Highway" over which their stage coaches and horsemen traveled in those early days. The first highways, of course, were the rivers, which in the coastal plain quietly wound their way through the limitless forests with sufficient depth for substantial navigation. Large ships came inland distances unbelievable at the present time. Quoting from Cook's History of Virginia we find the following paragraph which briefly but accurately describes this area during the reign of James I:

"Passing from the head of York across the upper Chickahominy, back to the Falls, now Richmond, we have a glimpse of what then was Virginia. A little society huddled together in the peninsula between the James and York; dependencies reaching into the wilds; on the river gold-laced commanders rowed swiftly by indented servants; on the outposts pioneers watching against attack"

From Yorktown (No. 1, on the accompanying map) and Williamsburg (2) the tide of settlement followed the course of the York and Pamunkey rivers to the present vicinity of Hanover Courthouse (11), whence it continued right on up the Little River to the Terrell lands in Louisa (14), and also turning to the north and south to ascend the North and South Anna Rivers.

And as population increased in the upper regions of New Kent County, we see first, Parish Divisions, and later County lines were laid to cut off Hanover, and finally Louisa. As the distances became too burdensome the westward worshippers at old St. Peter's Church established an upper parish, called Old Church, and later under the same necessity St. Paul's Parish came into being in the vicinity of Hanover courthouse.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

And while there was probably no lessening of river travel there gradually developed a system of public roads, which today we would be reluctant to dignify by such a designation. They were unbelievably rough and muddy, these "king's Highways," but at certain seasons of the year they were traversable. They generally followed the uplands paralleling the water routes, but considerably inland. Thus by stage coach it became possible to go from Yorktown all the way to Fredericksburg.

An unused section of this old King's Highway may still be seen beside St. Peter's Church in New Kent County, and many sections have either been modernized or re-routed. Leaving Yorktown (1) the old stage would proceed to Williamsburg (2) and northward past "Six-Mile Ordinary" to Barhamsville (spelled Barnnansville on old maps) some 9 miles further where the accompanying map shows a road running off to West Point (3), while the main highway continued on to New Kent Courthouse (6), and to St. Peter's Church (7), and to Old Church (10), and where soon a cross-road appears leading from The Falls (Richmond) (8) to a river landing on the Pamunkey. From Old church the old highway wound its way leisurely to the vicinity of Hanover Courthouse (11) where it meets a road running northward from Richmond (9). The route now turns north, leaving the early westward travel to proceed entirely by water, but the stage road goes on up to Bowling Green (12) and on through Caroline County to Fredericksburg by approximately the route of the present State Highway.

This old road, and similar arterial highways of colonial tidewater Virginia were so crooked that they are repeatedly intersected by any modern road using the same route. To be specific, and as an interesting road record, the following statement from Hon. S. W. Lacey, Clerk of the Court of New Kent County, dated November 20, 1939, in reference to the old King's Highway which passes St. Peter's Church, is especially valuable:

"The eastern portion of this old highway, known locally as 632 and again as 627, extends without much change from Barhamsville westward to New Kent Courthouse. When Rt. 33 was located through New Kent (identified on the map as Rt. 4, but at this time known as Rt. 33) this old King's Highway was bisected at many points, and at a point 2 ½ miles west of New Kent a link of road 3 miles long leading into St. Peter's Church was abandoned and no longer is a county road. From St. Peter's Church headed west, the road now swings over an improvised link from St. Peter's Church to Talleyville and headed west, follows to a large degree the present Route 33, but of course it really is found to the right and left after the new location of Rt. 33. In the extreme western end of the county the old link is still in use, running in front of a farm house known as the Old Tavern, now the property of our Treasurer, Mr. C. Linwood Fisher, Quinton, Va. That specific link is known as 610-Secondary.”

While truly venerable, some of the localities up in Louisa County noted on the accompanying map are of more importance in locating the earlier land-holdings. These are Beaver Dam (13), Bumpass Station (15), Fredericks Hall (16), and Louisa Courthouse (18). In the earlier colonial days, however, there were almost no towns and villages in Virginia, as indicated by another interesting quotation from the very authentic “Cook’s History”:

“Except Jamestown and the City of Henricus there are no towns in Virginia. The planters dislike them. Have they not their warehouses at the wharves on the rivers, approached by long shaky trestleworks, running out to unload or load the ships? These ships take away their tobacco to London and bring them back every article of convenience or luxury. That is enough; towns are useless; they are even baleful inventions; men jostle against each other in streets; the freedom of life is lost; it is much better to live on the great plantation and be monarch of all.”

A careful study of the movements of the first four generations of Terrells and the families with whom they were united in marriage will show that their homes lay along the Pamunkey in Hanover, extending to the banks of the Little River in Louisa.

All of this land was originally New Kent. William Terrell, son of Richmond, and his son, Joel, probably lived close together. John Burnley’s land, and that of the Davies family, joined. Henry and David Terrell, other sons of William, lived in Caroline County.

Henry and his son, Henry, are buried near Golansville. Joel, Sr., son of William, lived and reared his family in Hanover, but Joel, Sr., owned land in several other counties. His son, Joel, Jr., was a pioneer real estate promoter in Charlottesville, Va.

ST. GILES' CHURCH

One of the three ancient parishes of the town, the Church of St. Giles' in Reading has a long history, and its list of Vicars dates back to 1326. Although the church was practically rebuilt when it was restored in 1872, there are several interesting pieces of Norman work. It may not be generally known that the tower at the west end was originally square like those of the two other ancient parish churches with pinnacles at the four corners, but during the siege of the town by Parliamentary troops in the Civil War it was reduced to ruins. A slender wooden spire was afterwards added, but it was not until 1873 that the present graceful spire, which forms such a notable landmark, was erected.

For many years St. Giles' has been what one might term a popular church and has attracted a large following from other parishes and from further afield. One hundred and fifty years ago the church was so overcrowded that galleries had to be erected to accommodate all those who wished to hear the sermons of the then Vicar, the Rev. W. B. Cadogan. "Strangers from other parishes and even from the country flocked thither in great numbers," wrote a historian at the time. The interior must have presented a terrifying spectacle – an example of 18th century work at its worst. High box pews covered the ground floor, divided by narrow passages, and surrounding the church were low galleries supported on iron pillars. Everything in the ugly amphitheater converged to a huge three-decker pulpit, and the whole structure was swamped by a flat ceiling. This was how a writer of fifty years ago described St. Giles', but today we see a different St. Giles'. The massive stone pillars of the old church are still there, but the chancel and sanctuary have been beautified and richly adorned, while a Lady Chapel and side chapel have been added.

The foregoing account is from The Reading Standard (England), Friday July 19, 1935, and the accompanying picture of the church is from the same newspaper, the "checkered" appearance being occasioned by an unavoidable interference of half-tone lines in reproducing a printed picture.

MILITARY RECORD OF Henry Burnley

Bureau of Pensions

Washington, D. C.

“He (Henry Burnley) stated in his declaration for pension that he enlisted in March 1776, and served two years under Capt. Harry Terrell, Capt. Wm. Jones, Col. Josiah Porter, Col. Daniel Morgan, Col. Butler, Col. Davis, and Col. Russell, all of Virginia. No mention is made in his declaration of his having rendered any service other than the above but from other papers on file with the case it appears that on October 28, 1780, he was commissioned Ensign of a company of Volunteers commanded by Capt. Robert Lawson, and on March 7, 1782 Lieutenant in the Militia of Campbell County.”

The esteem in which Henry Burnley held Col. Daniel Morgan is evidenced by the fact that he requested his daughter, Anne Terrell Seals, to name her eldest son, Daniel Morgan instead of Henry Burnley after himself, as she wished to do.

Romance of Henry Burnley and the widow Davenport

On the eve of the Battle of Guilford C. H., Capt. Jack Smith Davenport told several of his comrades that he had a premonition that he was to be killed the next day, and he seemed very depressed. Henry Burnley was one of the listeners. "Let's wrestle and forget about tomorrow," said young Burnley. Jack Davenport was an experienced wrestler and an older and stronger man than Burnley, "all right, Hal", he said, "if I throw you, I'll not be killed; if you throw me, I'll be killed and you must marry Lucy and raise my children."

"Agreed," laughed young Burnley.

To the surprise of all, especially Burnley, Davenport fell. After this he appeared in much better spirits.

The next day, during the fight, Henry Burnley found his friend lying dead near the Court House steps. He drew him under the steps, removed his silver knee buckles which he later gave Davenport's widow, and after the battle buried his friend.

This story was told me many times by Mrs. Crymes, to whom Henry Burnley himself related the incident.

The widow Davenport was Lucy Barksdale.

Marriage Bond of Anne Burnley Daughter of Israel and Hannah Burnley

"Sir, please for to grant John Brown license for his Intermarriage with my daughter, Anne Burnley, and for your so doing this shall be your Sufficient Warrent, given under my hand this 20th January, 1775. To the Clerk of Bedford County.

Israel Burnley."

Joel Burnley, bondsman.

A similar document was signed by him for his daughter, Susannah, to marry John Barksdale. This bond was issued December 21, 1778.

MISS MARY JANE BURNLEY

The picture of Miss Mary Jane Burnley, appearing elsewhere in this book, was taken when she, oldest charter member of the Elizabeth Washington Chapter, D. A. R., unveiled the marker erected to honor the visit of General Washington to Augusta, Ga., in 1791. The ceremony took place in the Spring of 1932.

Cousin Mary at this time (April, 1940) is living in Miami, Florida, and in good health. She is the granddaughter of Henry Burnley.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

SARAH, WIFE OF COLLIER BARKSDALE

“The circumstantial evidence that Sarah, wife of Collier Barksdale, was a Randolph, seems pretty strong. Among the Halifax Barksdales descendants of William and Nathaniel (sons of Collier), such family names as Randolph, Beverly, Peter and William are very common. One of my great uncles was Grief Barksdale, which is a rather uncommon name found in the Randolph family. In addition to this, when we first find Collier Barksdale in Cumberland, he is living on “Letalone,” a plantation devised by Col. Wm. Randolph, of Turkey Island, to his son, Peter; and when he came to Charlotte, he again bought land which had been patented by Col. William Randolph. When John Barksdale, brother of Collier, sold a piece of land in Cumberland in 1754, one of the witnesses to the deed was William Randolph. I hope to continue my investigation on this point, and if I find anything else, will be glad to send it to you.” – Judge Robert F. Hutchison, circuit Judge of Charlotte County, Va., in a letter to Mr. R. D. Wharton, dated February 28, 1929.

“The earliest records of the family which I have found are in Cumberland. Three brothers, John, Collier, and Higgason (Hickerson, Hickson), were living there about 1750. William and Nathaniel were there all at the same time, but I don’t know what their relationship was to the other three. The three brothers lived on land which they bought from Peter, son of Col. Wm. Randolph of Henrico, a place known as “Letalone.” In 1755, John sold out in Cumberland, and bought another place in Charlotte from Wm. Randolph, of 1000 acres, known as “Rattlesnake”, and his brother, Collier, followed him and bought a part of it a few years later.” Judge Robert F. Hutchison in letter to Mr. R. D. Wharton.

My great aunt and my mother, both stated that Anne Terrell Burnley said she was a “second cousin” of John Randolph of Roanoke, and also stated that she was descendant of Pocahontas.

LETTER FROM ARCHIBALD SEALS TO MATTHEW HUBERT

Irwinton, (now Eufaula),
November 1st, 1837

Dear Nephew,

This will acknowledge the receipt of yours of 20th October which brought me the sad intelligence of Beverly’s illness. I am very sorry indeed to hear that he is yet the subject of affliction; and not yet able to come home, and attend his business; tho, you will please inform him, that as far as I have seen, the young man he employed manages his business very well. I am truly glad to hear that your family, also your father's, are in the possession of that invaluable blessing – good health. I also can say the same for my family with one exception my little son, Thomas J., who has remained at a very low stage of health for more than three months; and now it appears that unless a change for the better be wrought upon him shortly he cannot long survive. I am not done gathering my crop yet, I have made an abundant crop and realize a very fair price from my field. I got one dollar per bushel for corn and one dollar and fifty cents for fodder. I regret much to hear of your bad crops – of corn; but really hope you will yet make good crops of cotton. I must think yourself and father have the best crop of cotton in that neighborhood. I am quite encouraged to hear that Brother _____ has an intention of coming to this Country. I hope he may not get out of the notion of coming. You will please give him my respects and tell him, he has nothing to do, but to come and see and be convinced of the fertility of the soil of the beautiful country and all natural advantages to health – good water – and besides a good market, contiguous to us. Tell him if he were here, he could get fish and oysters whenever he wanted and all kinds of game & c. Tell him he must come anyhow, if he can leave his brother-in-law if not bring on (word not decipherable) too with him. My family all join me in tendering my love and best respects to your father, brothers, and your own. Morgan in particular sends his respects to you all. Tell Beverly he must get well soon. No more but am your uncle and friend,

Respectfully,
Archd Seals

M. H. Hubert

Archibald Seals, with his family, including three married daughters, Mrs. Beverly R. Barksdale (Emily), Mrs. John Lewis (Jane, afterward Mrs. G. W. Crymes), Mrs. Benj. Jones (Mary, afterward Mrs. John Mills Moore), moved to the new state of Alabama, in the autumn of 1836.

The above letter was to his wife's nephew, Matt Hubert. The Beverly referred to was his son-in-law. Morgan was Col. D. M. Seals, his son. Eufaula was at that time called Irwinton. Shortly after their removal to Alabama, Benjamin Jones died of a congestive chill. In 1838 the young widow Jones, then about eighteen years of age, married Col. John M. Moore. At the birth of their first child, a delegation of citizens called on Col. Moore to congratulate him. "And what is the young lady's name, Colonel?" asked one of them. "Eufaula", responded Col. Moore, who was very partial to Indian names. "Colonel, we are dissatisfied with the name of our town, Irwinton," said one of them, "and from now on it will be – Eufaula!"

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

This move from Georgia to Alabama was quite an adventure at that time. My great aunt, Mrs. Crymes, used to thrill me with stories of the wolves that would howl around them when they would stop their wagon trains for the night. The negro boys would build huge fires and keep them burning all night to frighten the wolves. The ladies and children and their maids traveled in carriages; the men on horseback and the slaves in covered wagons.

Archibald Seals was the son of William Seals and Judith Powell. Judith was the daughter of John (or William) Powell and Margaret (Peggy) McDonald.

(Henry Terrell and David Terrell were brothers. They were the sons of William Terrell, who died about 1727, and Susannah Waters.)

Joseph Thomas Terrell, son of Joseph Walker Terrell and Mary Elizabeth Anderson, was born June 22, 1837, on a farm about one mile west of Golansville, Caroline County, Virginia. This farm is part of a land grant to the Terrells from the King of England. The original document (deed) is now in possession of the daughter of Luis Terrell Mason, who lives in Richmond, Virginia.

Joseph Thomas Terrell was a graduate of Richmond College. During the war between the States he served as Sergeant in Company F, 24th Virginia Cavalry, under Brigadier General Gary of South Carolina, and Captain Allen. Other members of his Company were Lieutenants Anderson of Richmond, Broadus of Spottsylvania and Catlett. A few of the privates, close friends, were W. L. Wilkerson, Clarence Tompkins, Louis Stern, and Tom Blanton.

After the war he married Susan F. Wood of Caroline County, daughter of Edmund Pendleton Wood and Mary Jane Carpenter, whose other children were Mary J. W., who married James H. Terrell a brother of Joseph; Eugenia Taylor, who married Abraham E. T. Scruggs; William Richard, who married Mollie Jones; Thomas Waddy who married _____; Edmund Pendleton, who married Lissie Wheeler; Nina T., who married Thomas Overton Moss; Lillia _____ who married Thomas Henry Pace; and Mattie Ola, who married A. E. T. Scruggs, who had previously married her sister Eugenia Taylor [Wood].

Following the war Joseph opened a general store at Golansville where he also maintained a blacksmith and wheelwright shop and gave some attention to a grist and saw mill which he shared with his uncle William Penn Terrell and his brother James Henry Terrell. Later the interest of William Penn Terrell was purchased by the widow of Joseph Thomas Terrell.

Located on the property at Golansville is the site of an old Quaker meeting house and burying ground. The Golansville property is now owned by Robert Blanton.

Joseph Thomas Terrell who married Susan F. Wood had three children, a girl who died in infancy unnamed; William Dandridge Terrell, Sr., born August 10, 1871; married Estelle Wilkerson, November 6, 1901. They have two children. Charlotte Terrell born July 24, 1904, and William Dandridge Terrell, Jr., born June 26, 1908. The second son of Susan F. Wood and Joseph Thomas Terrell is Joseph Linnaeus Terrell, born May 20, 1878. He married twice. First wife Kathryn Lovengham who died _____ and by whom he had two daughters, Virginia, born May 14, 1906, and Ruth, born February 10, 1908. Second wife Marie Cass, formerly Marie Thompson, a widow, having one child, a daughter, by her first husband. They were married April 2, 1914.

William Dandridge Terrell and Estelle W. Terrell have two children, Charlotte, who married George N. Saegmuller and William Dandridge, Jr., who married Margaret Wells. Charlotte has one daughter, Sally Dandridge Saegmuller, born January 3, 1935; and William Dandridge, Jr., has one daughter, Nancy Elder Terrell, born Jan. 31, 1939.

In Conclusion

Many years ago when I started out to trace my people back to England, I did not think that so much interesting family history lay in our Virginia records. Nor did I know that so many descendants of Richmond Terrell and John Burnley were as interested as I.

So far as the Burnleys are concerned, I feel that I have just begun the search. The Burnleys, Saxons by inheritance, are very prominent in England. A large city in Lancaster bears the name. Legend has it that John Burnley was a young officer in the British Navy and, becoming involved in some of the various Stuart tangles, fled on a French ship to America. That he retained his connection with his family in England is evidenced by the fact that his son John went back to England rather than side with the Colonies.

The Burnleys in Virginia at that time had some bitter controversies among themselves about politics.

My great aunt, Mrs. Crymes, said that "Uncle Zack and Uncle Garland", as she referred to them, were the only Burnley relatives that Henry Burnley talked about to any extent.

That the Burnleys were prominent and wealthy in the early days in Virginia is very apparent. And, at the same time, if they had not had that rank in England they would not have had it in Virginia.

I sincerely hope that all of my relative may "Follow the Trail" with as much enthusiasm and affection as I have.

Loving Greetings to all of you.

(On page 70 the date of Mrs. Greer's birth is given as April 19. This is obviously an error as the date on the tombstone is April 30.)

SECTION 1: Non-TERRELL surnames

Original index by Suzanne Johnston of Danville CA.

IMPORTANT NOTICE: This index is SOUNDEX sorted. It is not in strict alphabetical order. However it is easier to find alternate spellings of a surname with this sort. This reduces the chance of missing an ancestor because someone spelled the name differently. The major difference is that prefixes, MAC, MC, O' etc. are ignored. For example, Mc Cord is in the C section, not in the M section. If you are looking for a name with a prefix, look under first letter of the root word. T*R*L surnames are in a separate section after this one. DFB
